A-10s find new lease on life

Staff Sgt. Jim Steele

The first production A-10A was delivered to Davis-Monthan in October 1975. Most of the Air Force's A-10s are nearing the end of their originally planned 8,000 flight hour service life. Proposed upgrades would double the service life and keep the aircraft flying until 2028.

The A/OA-10 Thunderbolt II close air support and forward air control aircraft is one of those airplanes people either love or hate. Those who love the A-10 Warthog, will appreciate that the Air Force plans sweeping upgrades for the subsonic jet to keep it in service and more than double its original life-span.

Air Combat Command, Langley Air Force

Base, Va., will have a system requirements review for the aircraft Aug. 14 through 16 to lay the groundwork for plans to keep the aircraft flying until 2028.

Most of the Air Force's 367 A-10s are near the end of their original 8,000 flight-hour service life and officials are working a combined service-life extension and precision-engagement program for the aircraft.

"We continue to upgrade our aircraft to increase our combat capabilities and now it's the

A-10's turn," said Maj. Scott Stark, ACC A-10 functional manager. "We learned how effective a weapons platform the A-10 is during Desert Storm and we took a hard look at how it fits in our overall mission. The upgrades will make it part of that mission for quite a few more years."

305th RQS rescues downed Falcon pilot near Iraqi border

Within minutes of getting the call, D-M's Air Force Reserve Command HH-60G helicopter crew scrambled to retrieve a pilot whose F-16 Fighting Falcon crashed July 18 near Batman, Turkey.

The rescue crew from the 305th Rescue Squadron was on deployment when it picked up Capt. Michael Nelson, 510th Expeditionary Fighter Squadron, deployed to Incirlik Air Base, Turkey.

At the time of the accident, the F-16 was en route to a mission enforcing the northern no-fly zone over Iraq. The crash occurred in eastern Turkey, near the Iraqi border.

Members of the 305th RQS are providing combat-search-and-rescue support for the no-fly zone mission, for Operation Northern Watch. The rescuers were at a forward-operating location, preparing to go on alert, at the time.

"Our people picked up the pilot soon after he bailed out," said Lt. Col. Harold Maxwell, 305th RQS deputy commander for operations. "After they took him to their base, they transferred the pilot to a C-130, where the two pararescuemen and our flight surgeon treated him on the one-hour flight to Incirlik."

Maxwell said this was not the first time his unit has come to the aid of a pilot in that part of the world. The last time was seven years ago when rescuers flew into Iraq to get a downed British aircrew.

"We are glad they didn't have to go into Iraq to get the pilot, but they would have been ready to go if the plane went down in Baghdad." (AFRC News Service)

UPAR responsibilities

UPARs are responsible for being the “eyes and ears” of the public affairs office. Each and every squadron on base has unique individuals in it that have an interesting story to tell, whether it is about sports, awards, lifesaving acts, IDEA program contributions, etc.

Each of your squadrons are also making improvements to the methods or processes that they use or to squadron facilities or community areas via self help projects.

UPARs are responsible for getting the information to the public affairs staff in a usable format and in a timely manner.

Not every idea is going to get published. The staff focuses on issues that effect the base populace in general, but it never hurts to present ideas to your squadron UPARs so that they can judge the input for newsworthiness or unique human interest appeal and forward it to the staff.

The following are some of the areas we hope to utilize UPARs to tell your squadron's story (based on skills):

- ◆ Provide news ideas as well as write and shoot photos of squadron activities for submission to the base newspaper;
- ◆ Review and solicit Hometown News Release submissions;
- ◆ Review their squadron's submissions to the base TV Channel (75); and
- ◆ Seek volunteers for tours and speaking engagements

Pet care

Concern: I have a concern about a neighbor who is not properly providing for his dogs — a boxer and a bull dog. Repeated attempts to rectify this matter with the owner, as well as the vet clinic, have been unsuccessful. Can you please help?

Response: Housing personnel inspected the animals and the back yard at the address in question. A small hole was identified in the back yard, but nothing large enough for the animals to crawl under the fence. The owner has been advised on the proper care of animals according to the base housing pet policy. She agreed to ensure the animals have plenty of food and water. The housing office will follow up to make sure this is being accomplished. If you have any other questions please contact my housing manager at 8-4264.

Kudos

Thanks: I want to express my gratitude to one of the baggers at the commissary. I came out of the commissary after doing my shopping and found I had a flat tire. The lady bagger took my cold food back into the commissary while I was changing my tire. When I went back in she brought the rest of the groceries out for me. I know the commissary has been receiving some bad raps on the baggers so I just want to express my appreciation to #149, the white-haired bagger lady.

Response: Thank you for taking advantage of the Commander's Corner program and your favorable comments concerning one of our commissary baggers. Our baggers and store employees try to serve our patrons to the best of their ability and often it goes unrecognized. We have personally passed on your comments to the bagger and the supervisor. We are extremely pleased that you had a great shopping experience and we strive to maintain that level of excellence each and every time our valued patrons enter the commissary.

NCO Academy system expands

By Carl Bergquist

Air University Public Affairs

The Air Force is expanding its capability to provide training to midlevel non-commissioned officers with the addition of a 13-flight NCO Academy at Gunter Annex in Montgomery, Ala.

The school, with classes scheduled to start January 2003, brings the number of Air Force NCO academies worldwide to 14.

Students attending the new school will be "an overflow of NCOs requiring this training — not to mention any 'must-trains' who may have a line number to master sergeant," said Chief Master Sgt. Vickie Helms, Gunter NCO Academy commandant.

The new facility at Gunter will train 1,183 students annually.

The course is 28 academic days long with seven classes scheduled per year.

"Our staff will consist of 27 active-duty people," Helms said. "There is a need for technical sergeants to apply for instructor positions. We have 16 slots to fill."

To meet university academic standards, instructors must have a two-year or higher college degree.

Wing officials stress childcare guidelines

'Home alone' policy no laughing matter

By Tech. Sgt. B. Coors-Davidson
355th Wing Public Affairs

With summer here and children out of school, parents are reminded that common sense and planning are important when making childcare arrangements.

"Home Alone" may be the title of a series of mad-capped comedy movies about what happens when a child is left to his own devices, but there is nothing funny about leaving children alone in the real world.

Military family housing residents must be aware of and follow housing guidelines regarding childcare. The youth supervision guideline is in cooperation with the base school age and family childcare programs.

"As a community, it is imperative that we periodically review the policy that governs leaving children unattended at home," said Col. Francis Hendricks, 355th Support Group commander. "The driving force for this periodic review is the safety of our children."

Children newborn through age nine must never be left at home without adult supervision. Children ages nine and 10 may be left for periods less than two daytime hours with ready access to an adult.

Eleven-year-old children may be left for periods longer than two hours during the day if they have ready access to an adult.

Children ages 12 through 14 may be left during daytime hours, but never overnight. The exception is high school freshmen may be left overnight if they have ready access to an adult.

Children 15 through high school graduation may be left unattended for periods of less than five days, such as when their parent or guardian has a short temporary duty assignment. However, these minors must have some adult supervision available to make periodic checks.

Red Cross certified baby sitters may be used for younger children, and adult supervision is defined as someone who has or assumes responsibility for children.

"All housing residents receive a copy of the guidelines," said Ruby Modica, 355th Civil Engineer Squadron housing manager. "It is not just the age of a child that indicates if they may be left alone, parents must use good judgment and consider a child's maturity and judgment as well."

The D-M guidance on youth supervision states that each child is unique and emotional and physical capabilities may vary. Parents should consider these capabilities when determining if a child is capable of being left alone.

"Each household with children under the age of 14 should take a moment and become familiar with the policy and keep it available for future quick reference," Hendricks added. "Taping it to the inside of a kitchen cabinet door has proved to be useful for my family."

Angie Erickson

including integration of a digital weapons stores management system, a situational awareness data link and new cockpit displays.

Proposed Improvements to the Hog also includes installation of a direct-current power generator, precision-guided weapons, digital moving maps, electronic warfare equipment and a helmet-mounted sighting system.

The plan also addresses life extension issues and structural improvements.

The upgrades will begin with preliminary and critical design reviews in 2002 and flight tests of upgraded aircraft should begin in 2003, with all the aircraft upgrades completed by 2007.

According to current usage rates, "16,000 flight hours ties pretty closely with 2028", says William Paradies, Lockheed Martin Systems Integration A-10 program manager.

If the Air Force approves the plan, officials will also consider replacing the aircraft's engines. "The Air Force is seriously looking at re-engining the aircraft," Paradies said. Lockheed Martin has already held preliminary discussions with manufacturers about replacement power plants.

The A-10 is the first Air Force aircraft specially designed for close air support of ground forces. They are simple, effective and survivable twin-engine jet aircraft that can be used against all ground targets, including tanks and other armored vehicles. They have excellent maneuverability at low air speeds and altitude with highly accurate weapons-delivery.

The A-10/OA-10 have excellent maneuverability at low air speeds and altitude, and are highly accurate weapons-delivery platforms.

"Until such time as the force structure changes, we must keep our aircraft operational or buy new aircraft," Stark said. "The precision engagement upgrade is the best and most cost effective way to be ready for global engagement."

AF Reserve hiring AD retirees

The National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal 2001 added Section 12741 to Chapter 1223, Title 10 USC, which permits retired active-component service people, who later serve in the Air Force Reserve, to elect retirement as members of the retired reserve.

In addition to helping Air Force Reserve Command fill a critical need, active-duty retirees will receive several benefits for continued military service as reservists.

These incentives include increased retirement income by earning points and/or pay while serving; promotion opportunity to a higher grade and retirement in that grade; renewed esprit de corps and camaraderie enjoyed on active duty; and the possibility of serving in another career field and receiving new training.

To be eligible for this program, people must be regular active-duty Air Force retirees who retired not more than five years ago, or current active-duty members with an approved, projected retirement date. The program is open to all career fields.

The Air Force Reserve will consider all applicants as long as there are valid vacancies to be filled, and they meet the program's criteria. Some people may have to retrain to meet the needs of the Air Force Reserve.

Once retirees become members of the Reserve, they participate within the regular boundaries of the Reserve's rules for promotion, continuation, utilization and retirement.

In addition to being physically qualified, retirees must meet high-year-tenure or mandatory separation date rules, which require reservists to retire or separate by age 60.

Participation in the Reserve is limited to a total of 33 years service unless enlisted reservists request and obtain an extension.

The retirees will continue to draw active-duty retirement pay, but will not receive dual compensation for active-duty retirement pay and participation in the Reserve. Their active-duty retirement paycheck will be reduced by 1/30th for each day of reserve duty; however, they will receive a full reserve pay check for duty performed on that same day. During a drill weekend, reservists receive the equivalent of one day of active-duty pay for every four hours of service.

If promoted, members may elect reserve retirement pay in the higher grade at age 60. Even if not promoted, they may request recomputation of their retired pay.

For more information, call the nearest Air Force Reserve recruiter or (800) 257-1212.

To follow ... to lead ...

Starting point of followership is leadership

By Col. (Dr.) Monique Ryser

355th Aerospace Medicine Squadron commander

This is not the first time I have to write a couple pages for a base paper. So far I have avoided talking too much about myself because I am aware this topic is of very limited interest to most of the base population. Please, not that I did not say "base populace," which is a term I dislike very much as its definition in the American Heritage Dictionary reads as follows: the common people, the masses. Most times, a theme is suggested, and it then reminds me of the compositions I had to write when I was in high school. The themes are predictable: leadership, integrity, patriotism.

Last time I chose to talk about a subject not often discussed. I talked about followership because it is important in any organization, wherever there is a hierarchy, and wherever many people work together to accomplish a mission.

I have thought about followership often during the last year. I have tried to understand what good followership means to me and how it affects the way I live, the way I work, and the way I relate to the people I meet every day. The more I thought about followership, the more something quite simple became obvious: followership is important only if you have someone to follow, that is if you have a leader.

To be able to be a good follower, you have to have a good leader, because who would want to be the good follower of a bad and lousy leader? So the starting point of followership is leadership, but not any kind of leadership. It has to be good leadership.

Airman 1st Class Maryann Walker

What is good leadership? It certainly is not just having a position, a title, a certain rank, or a degree. And good leadership does not happen just from age or experience. There is only one way to good leadership and that way is: you have to earn the right to lead. How does one earn the right to lead?

There are a few steps we should all consider:

Let go of your ego, because you do not lead for personal gain, you lead to serve other people.

Become a good follower first, and this obviously applies to all of us in the Air Force, from the youngest airman to the oldest colonel (and I am the oldest colonel on this base, so don't think I am pointing a finger at anybody else but myself!)

Build positive relationships. At all times, we are part of a team and to succeed we need to get along with each other.

Work with excellence. No one ever aims to follow a mediocre leader.

Rely on discipline, not emotion. This will allow us to succeed during the tough times, when we are out of energy, and when we really do not want to lead.

Help the people you know and work with so they can live better lives and reach their highest potential. This is when leadership reaches its highest value.

And last, but certainly not least, give your power away. Leadership grows whenever its power is shared. As a leader you are the conduit to empower others, and if you can do that, your leadership will extend far.

And now somehow I have to complete my circle and get back to followership. But I have an easy way to do this. I will quote one great American. Dwight Eisenhower said: "In order to be a leader, a man must have followers. And to have followers, a man must have their confidence. Hence the supreme quality for a leader is unquestionable integrity."

Until next time, I wish you all good leadership and good followership!

355th Wing Safety

Davis-Monthan has an abundance of wildlife. We are all familiar with the various birds, rabbits, ground squirrels, and coyotes. We have even had bears and bobcats roaming the base.

Recently several herds of Javelina have moved in. Javelinas have always been here, but these were living very close to the runway creating a potential serious hazard.

Everyone knows the hazards of our profession. Every day we face uncertain hazards that can "bite" you when you least expect it. The 355th Wing Flight Safety office is here to try and reduce or eliminate hazards and make our jobs as safe as possible. One of our jobs here at flight safety is Bird Aircraft Strike Hazard reduction and Animal Control. Normally this consists of reducing bird populations on the airfield through habitat modification, harassment, and depredation. Bird strikes cause millions of dollars in damage to aircraft each year and loss of life. We all remember the E-3 that crashed in Alaska after striking numerous geese. Wild animals crossing in the path of a departing or landing aircraft can also be catastrophic.

Circle the hogs!

Javelinas are also known as the Collared Peccary. They evolved in South America and migrated north. There are approximately 60,000 Javelina in Arizona today. The adults can weigh up to 60 pounds and generally live for about 8 years. They have 2 litters a year normally bearing 2 young with each litter. They are prey to bobcats and mountain lions. The young are prey to coyotes and eagles. Their diet consists of flowers, fruits, nuts, and berries. Prickly pear makes up a major portion of their diet and this is why they like Davis-Monthan AFB.

In December 2000, we requested a staff assistance visit from the Air Force Safety Center and the United States Department of Agriculture to help us with come up with a plan to eliminate or reduce the hazard of Javelina on our runway. Some of the recommendations included electric fencing, habitat modification, hunting, depredation, and trapping/relocating. We chose to trap and relocate since this was the most cost effective and it provided an immediate solution. The Arizona Game and Fish Department lent us a corral type trap and some instruction on how to trap them. The commissary helped by providing old

The trap was set and baited. One of the sections of corral fencing was intentionally left off to allow the Javelina to get used to going in and out of the trap. Each morning at 7:30 a.m., the trap was baited. After four days of baiting, the Javelina became accustomed to the trap and the section of fence was installed that contained a trapdoor. In order to trap the Javelina, a rope had to be rigged to the door and run about 25 yards away and pulled manually. Javelinas are intelligent animals and will find a way out of the trap within two hours. This prevented us from using a self-closing trap. After several more days of baiting, the Javelina became predictable and the date was set to trap them. The trap was baited and the wait began. Shortly after baiting, the whole herd of Javelina entered the trap and the door was sprung. Six Javelinas were in the trap. The AG&F was contacted and came out with tranquilizer guns and tranquilized them. The sedative had to be placed just right or the animal could be injured or killed.

The hindquarter was the target. After approximately 20 minutes, all the Javelinas were sound asleep. They were removed from the trap, measured, gender identified and tagged. They were taken approximately 50 miles to the east of Tucson and released.

In all, 10 Javelina were trapped and relocated from Davis-Monthan AFB in six weeks. We have learned something new, and the airfield is a safer place. There has not been a sighting of Javelina on or near the airfield since thanks to everyone who was involved.

The job does not end here. Trapping is only a short-term solution. We are currently working on a long-term solution to prevent Javelinas from returning to Davis-Monthan, by means of electric fencing or habitat modification.

Thank you letter

Dear Colonel Schafer,

This is among the first of many letters you are likely to receive complimenting you on Davis-Monthan and thanking you for excellent services performed by your 355th Wing. Mrs. Christine Wade, whose eyesight prevents her from writing, asked that I thank you for the Memorial Service for Gen. Horace Wade and for the other fine services, which were provided. General Wade was one of our truly great Air Force generals. The service was at the Desert Dove Chapel June 26, and officiating were Chaplains Gordon Snyder and Mark Thomas. I worked for General Wade at SHAPE/NATO and it is my pleasure to join with Mrs. Wade in this letter of appreciation.

The burial service was at the Air Force Academy June 21. The escort officer accompanying Mrs. Wade and the remains from Tucson to the Academy was your Lt. Col. Gregg Andreachi. Though Gregg was a volunteer, no better person for that important job could have been selected. When that trip was over, and there were travel complications, Mrs. Wade was ready to adopt Gregg. He surely has my appreciation and highest respect.

Yes, your people were anxious about your arrival and were very busy with your briefings and the Change of Command, but that did not prevent D-M from providing Mrs. Wade and those of us associated with the Memorial Service outstanding support. Col. Francis Hendricks was on top of all the little things that came up, and insured that Mrs. Wade was offered every possible courtesy.

Your protocol section was very helpful in providing a suite for my wife and me and we are grateful. I particularly want to mention TSgt. Philip Bourne and the Honor Guard who performed at the Memorial Service. I have never seen a finer group of young people. We were so impressed with their performance and they made everyone proud. Your command did a great job and again, I join with Mrs. Wade in saying thank you very much. Oceans of gratitude and best wishes,

Retired Col. Robin Jones

Health Focus

What's the true cost of tobacco use?

By Maj. Doug Little and Capt. Janet Behrenhoff
355th Medical Group

The cost to your health as a tobacco user is well known to all of us.

Your medical provider, as well as media sources, remind you of the dangers regularly:

- ◆ increased risk of lung, throat, oral and bladder cancers.
- ◆ increased risk of asthma and other health problems to children of parents who smoke.
- ◆ prenatal risks of low birth weight, lower IQ, and a higher risk of chronic respiratory diseases such as asthma.

Beyond these health risks, have you ever considered the financial cost of continuous tobacco use?

Consider the following figures.

Using cigarettes as the model, with an average pack-cost of $3.50:

Packs/Day 1 / 2 / 3

One Week $19.60 / $39.20 / $58.80

One Month $78.40 / $156.80 / $235.20

One Year $940.80 / $1881.60 / $2822.40

Five Years $4,704 / $9,408 / $14,112

20 Years $18,816 / $37,632 / $56,448

So, following along with the chart above, just imagine if you took the monthly savings and invested the money into Government Savings Bonds at 4.9 percent, your investment would grow...

In 10 years: $12,109 / $24,218 / $36,328

Take the Step – Quit Now

Have you or someone you know tried to quit smoking?

How many times?

Once, twice, three, even four or more times?

If this sounds like you or someone you know, there is a way to quit smoking.

The Tobacco Cessation Program and the HAWC have teamed up to help those who want to quit.

Did you know the Enlisted Club and Bowling Alley on base have recently been made smoke-free?

With changes like these, being a smoker is getting harder every day.

This program will give you the tools you need to stop smoking and begin leading a healthier life.

The path to a healthier lifestyle includes being smoke free!

For more information call the Health and Wellness Center at 8-2294. (Courtesy 355th Medical Group)

Or, if you choose to invest in a mutual fund that has an average return of 12 percent, your investment would mature...

In 10 years: $18,035 / $36,070 / $54,105

Now, let your investments continue for a full 20 years:

4.9 percent: $31,856 / $63,711 / $95,567

12 percent: $77,558 / $155,115 / $232,673

Think about it. Invest the money you are currently spending on tobacco products and at retirement you've got the funds for the deposit on your retirement lake house, or the car of your dreams or the overseas vacation that you thought you would never be able to afford.

Or, if you want some more immediate gratification, consider setting aside your tobacco money for something you really want

A DVD player could be bought with a few months savings, a big screen TV in about a half year, and a nice home entertainment center after a year or so, depending on whether you smoke one or two packs a day.

When considered in these terms, the money you are dumping into your tobacco habit could really make a difference in your life!

Unquestionably, tobacco addiction is incredibly difficult to overcome, so talk with your healthcare team and let us help you successfully accomplish this transition.

Then head over to the finance office and let them help you figure ways to invest your savings toward your retirement prize, or begin planning your next big purchase.

Call the Health and Wellness Center at 8-2294 and ask about the Tobacco Cessation Program today.

New officers, awards

The Davis-Monthan Women's Golf Association recently announced the officers for the 2001-2002 season, as well as presented several awards for the end of the previous season. The new officers are Patricia Horton (president), Kay Santarelli (vice-president), Elena Mahoney (tournament chair), Barbara Allison (secretary) and Tiffany Miller (treasurer). Awards went to Mahoney, Hyesuk Fish, Horton, Miller and Barbara Fraser, as well as Evelyn Youngberg, Larry Van Vleet, Donna Mikalonis and Nancy Flesher. Weekly play-day awards were presented to Mahoney, Horton, Fish, Van Vleet, Betty Brosnan Allison, Dottie Moe, Marie Cogut and Jackie Stewart. The sign up coffee for the new season is at 9 a.m. Aug. 29. The first play-day is Sept. 5, and the first general membership meeting is Oct. 3, with successive meetings to be held on the first Wednesday of each month. The D-M Women's Association welcomes all D-M lady golfers, whether active-duty, retired, or family members.

He committed no errors, had three runs batted in (RBI) and scored three runs, even though his team lost the game to TRS. In the game against the 418 US Army, Towe was three for five with three home runs, including an in-the-park round-tripper. He committed no errors in that game, had six RBIs and scored three times as TRS defeated the Army.

No pool pass or advance registration is needed. Sign up before class at the pool, or phone the outdoor recreation center for details at 8-3736.
